DRAFTING PLAN TO PREVENT STRIKES IN AVIATION PLANTS

National Defense Commission Is Working Out The Details

TO NAME COMMITTEE

Strikes Would Be Called Only After All Other Means Had Failed

By Eric Friedheim
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—A broad program to prevent future strikes in the aviation industry is being drafted by the National Defense Commission, defense sources disclosed today.

The Commission shortly will announce creation of a committee of management, labor and the Government which is expected to agree to place a virtual ban on strikes in the industry.

Strikes would be resorted to only after the Commission has exhausted every means at its disposal for adjustment of controversies.

Decision to step into the aviation industry followed on labor relations in the shipbuilding industry. Representatives of employers, workers and the Government yesterday agreed to place all disputes in the hands of the Commission before halting work on shipbuilding.

Both the CIO and the AFL participated in the agreement. Sidney Hillman, labor member of the Defense Commission, hailed the agreement as a most important step in the defense program.

"The action of the shipbuilding committee may form a pattern which will serve as a guide to other industries in fostering the most harmonious labor-management relationships and in maintaining highest levels of vital defense production," Hillman said.

Part of the accord provides that no shipyard will seek to lure skilled workers from another part of the country with the promise of higher wages. Defense officials explained that all the nation's shipbuilding companies will pay a fair wage scale uniformly.

Opportunities Offered Youths On NYA Program

Opportunities for employment on National Youth Administration projects in Bucks County are available to unemployed youths between the ages of 18 and 24.

Additional openings have been created on account of the large number of youth who leave the NYA program monthly to take jobs in private industry. According to Mrs. Kathryn H. Fretz more than 250 have left the NYA program in the past six months, thus creating new places for other youth to obtain work experience through the NYA projects now being operated in this county.

EXCHANGEITES ARE HOSTS TO ELEVEN OF BRISTOL HIGH

Coach, Assistant, Faculty Manager, 24 of Squad Are Entertained at Banquet

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Dr. George T. Fox Gives An Address in Absence of The Scheduled Speaker

The Bristol Exchange Club last evening tendered its annual banquet to the Bristol high school football team. Guests of honor were Coach Thomas Campion, assistant coach Howard Gushard, and faculty manager Charles Utz. Twenty-four members of the squad were present.

President Roy Fry made the address of welcome, and presided over the meeting. He congratulated the coach and the squad upon the completion of a hard schedule. He announced that at the last moment the speaker scheduled for the evening, Leo Rirdan, sports editor of the Philadelphia Evening Ledger, had sent a telegram regretting that he would be unable to attend.

President Fry then called upon coach Campion, who spoke briefly of some of the events of the season. He then introduced various members of the squad.

Assistant coach Gushard then was introduced, and he reviewed the important games of the season, pointing out that only in the Burlington game was the team defeated by more than one touchdown. In every game including this one, he said, "Bristol outgained and made more first downs than the opponents, but things went wrong at just the wrong moment, and they don't pay off on first downs."

President Fry then introduced the "reserve back" of the evening, Dr. George T. Fox, who addressed the boys. Dr. Fox spoke of the fine spirit exhibited by the squad in overcoming the many obstacle of the season, and especially in tying Morrisville in the final game of the season. He told the boys of the changes that have taken place since he played upon his high school team in New England. He drew reference to the idol of all football fans, Knute Rockne, and said that he and members of the Exchange Club were proud of the Bristol squad because they fulfilled Rockne's famous quotation "It is not 'did you win the game', but 'how did you play the game' that matters."

Dr. Fox, as he stressed the need of following the principles of democracy, said: "If you boys fail to continue to observe the lofty accepted principles of Americanism, the frontier of the brow of Columbia will no longer gleam with the ineffable glory of freedom and independence; but in its stead would soon be substituted an imperial diadem, flashing the murky radiance of dominion and power."

Election of officers was conducted at the conclusion of the addresses.

The following were elected to office for the coming year: President, Horace Schmidt; vice president, Russel DeLong; treasurer, William J. Lefferts; secretary, Charles F. Boyd.

Hon. Thomas B. Stockham Addresses Rotary Club

The Honorable Thomas B. Stockham, Assemblyman from Bucks County in the Pennsylvania Legislature, was the guest speaker before the local Rotary Club yesterday afternoon when he addressed them at the Elks' Home on the subject, "Community Service."

"Community Service," the speaker declared, "is the thoughtfulness, love, affection, and desire to be helpful to others."

"The object of the local community is to hold most dearly and maintain the democratic rights of the people."

"Today we must face the sun and keep the shadows of fear behind us, because in these days are filled with a great fear. And although various groups of people have sinister designs against the good of the community it is within the power and hearts of men to keep them out."

"People in small communities know each other intimately and there is a family standing and pride. We must maintain this, because against this is the way of the dictators—rule by fear alone."

The speaker also outlined briefly the historical background of community organization. He was introduced by Jacob C. Schmidt, Sr., chairman of the community service committee. Dr. John J. Hargrave, vice-president, was in charge of the meeting.

ture of them are just as appealing as those for the women. The packing instructions with each bag are proof of the extra capacity of this type of luggage.

What young woman or older woman on your list wouldn't like some cosmetics? Although I must admit, there are scores of brands at all prices on the market today, I know any woman within my acquaintance would appreciate most heartily an "Evening in Paris" set. There is one particularly interesting gift-box in the window of Morry's Super Drug Store at 310 Mill street. It is a star, and naturally a star reminds us of Christmas. This large silver and blue container is quite "Christmasy" in appearance, and boasts of a silver compact, a fine gift in itself; the sweet-scented powder, the choice cologne, lip-stick, and other items.

There are small gifts and large gifts on everyone's list, but when it comes to the large and choice gifts, one or two of which nearly everyone must needs care for, I suggest watches. J. S. Lynn, at his Mill street shop, is displaying at this holiday season a fine variety of Elgins—in square and rectangular models, white or yellow gold. This excellent quality watch, American in design and workmanship, may be had with any type of bracelet. There are leather, cord or metal ones, the metal ones being in choice of link or one-piece style.

THE TOY WORLD

What dreams of toys fill the minds of the children as Christmas draws near? They can be seen flattening their noses against the windows of stores, gazing open-mouthed at the wonders the toy makers have produced for their delight. It is plain that the child's whole heart longs with an unutterable desire for the possession of these things.

The toy is the tool which the child uses to test out his powers and see what he can do with his hands and eyes. It is a revelation of new forces of whose existence he was unaware, and promotes in him a desire to understand and control them.

Children have a keen desire to do the things done by adults. They long to think of themselves as big men and women. When a boy acquires a little spade or hammer or cart, he is supremely happy to imagine himself as digging up the garden, building a house, or transporting material. It is his first step in the world of work. The boy who loves to play with such miniature tools will probably be industrious and reliable in the world of grown-up tools.

Thus the toy world awakens the child mind and gives it a foretaste of the activities of life for which the young folk are preparing.

CORPORALS

In issuing orders regarding promotion of men in the American Army, Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commanding the First Army, asserts that the present type of warfare has placed a new importance on leadership in subordinate ranks because there is greater dependence in combat and in modern combat machines on individual and small group action.

In many respects, General Drum points out, the corporal of today requires the leadership ability of the lieutenant of yesterday. Men in the ranks not only are to be permitted to have ideas for the good of the service, he says, but they are encouraged to have them.

It may be unfair to connect the fact that Hitler served as a corporal during the last war and the fact that the new type of warfare with which he and his advisers have cursed the world raises the stature of the corporal. Yet there is no denying that the role of the corporal has increased in importance. The manner in which small units sped through France shows that little groups led by officers of the lower ranks played an important part in the German victory.

Such warfare is not merely one of machines. It is a war in which ideas are tremendously important. Because Germany has been receptive to ideas, nations which seek to defeat the menace she presents must be equally receptive. Thus the soldier is no longer merely a cog in a huge machine, taking orders blindly; he is recognized as an individual who may have an important contribution to make to the science of war.

In these days when mass production has a tendency to blot out individuality, anything that tends to raise the dignity of the individual is unusual.

The Mexican government announces that it needs no help from anybody. Is it possible there is foreign-owned property left in Mexico to steal?

The British boy who wanted to be a fireman and grew up to realize his ambition must realize now that he picked a most strenuous occupation.

"HONEYMOON PREFERRED" by May Christie

SYNOPSIS

How could she win back Walter Mallory, well known lawyer? That was the question uppermost in the mind of Jean Garrett, lovely young debutante as she danced with Tommy Alden, society playboy at the Yacht Club. A few nights previous, Walter had told her he would not be third man in a party which included philandering Pedro de Moraes and Tommy, and had dropped out of the picture. To add to Jean's chagrin, he was acquiring the beautiful Helen Hobart, who would have to face the consequences now, and not Helen!

She'd give all the tea in China if her stepfather didn't hear the bad news! Rupert was a darling, but a staunch stickler for etiquette.

Still dazed from her fall, her mind reeled doubly when she thought of that picture of their arrest, and the lurid captions!

If only they'd let her phone Walter!

He either wouldn't believe her—attribute a very different motive—or he would think she was crazy about Tommy.

Her mouth twisted as she thought of Helen. It must have been none other than Helen who had made the wager with him, dared him to take the wheel. Helen had saved her own skin at the last minute, which was probably what she'd intended from the beginning. Jean had played right into Helen's hand by going aboard the boat. And it was she who would have to face the consequences now, and not Helen!

She'd give all the tea in China if her stepfather didn't hear the bad news! Rupert was a darling, but a staunch stickler for etiquette.

Still dazed from her fall, her mind reeled doubly when she thought of that picture of their arrest, and the lurid captions!

If only they'd let her phone Walter!

Jean told the butler to give six dollars to a waiting taxi-driver.

ter, he'd knock the head off that cameraman—he'd smash the plate—he'd stop the presses printing it—he'd hate to see her in this jam!

"They'll be churning out the picture in tens of thousands now!" she told herself, miserably.

Heavy footsteps sounded down the stone passage. Jangle of keys in the cell's door.

An officer—and with him, Walter Mallory! He stared at Jean for a long moment, wrapped as she was in the police coat. No sign of sympathy in the keen blue eyes.

"I'm sorry you were troubled, officer," he said curtly, "but there is no charge. I won't sign a complaint. You see, Miss Garrett was authorized by me to use my boat at any time."

Darling! She could have hugged him. But his expression didn't invite demonstration.

He went on: "Had I known it was she who had taken it for a run on the river during the dance we were both attending at the Yacht Club, I shouldn't have notified the police. I was a little too hasty."

They were alone.

"My father will pay for the damages to the boat, Walter. I'm ever so sorry!" she faltered. It didn't make things easier to know she must be looking a dishevelled fright in these clothes.

He asked sharply: "Whatever possessed you to go aboard?"

"Tommy had been drinking—"

"—and you were insane enough to go with him! Anything for a thrill!" sarcastically.

"It wasn't that at all!" she protested.

"You knew that I was about to take a party aboard?"

scription of my boat when I saw that it was gone from the pier. I'm told," he added sharply, "they semaphored you with lights, but you wouldn't stop."

"Neither of us understood the signals—"

"Nor the sirens either, I suppose?" His tone and gaze seemed to say, wordlessly: not in the condition you were in, naturally!

Which was unjust, for she hadn't had one cocktail at the dance, although she was aware she must be looking it.

"How's Tommy?" she faltered.

"Better than he deserves. What I should give him is a darn good hiding," came the disconcerting answer.

"Is it—I mean, could you take us back to town in your car?" knowing she had no money with her, and that Tommy was in his usual broke condition.

"Sorry I can't oblige," said Walter stiffly. "I'm driving in the opposite direction to join my party at the Cruise Club. I sent them ahead of me."

An embarrassing pause. Then a worse slap.

"You'll have to take a taxi," he said, "and may I suggest that you both stop at one of the all-night drugstores and have a stiff bromoseltzer?"

She managed to get into her stepfather's house by the service entrance. The butler answered the night-bell. She told him to go around the corner and give six dollars to a waiting taxi-driver. He did so.

suggestion for a rearrangement of Defense Commission personnel and power came from his opponents, and he has a strong distaste for following any suggestions which do not originate within the admin- istrative circle. Partly, too, there was the difficulty of finding the right men for the new posts. In any event, he took no steps before he left on his trip; and, of course, now none can be taken until his return, which will not be earlier than the seventeenth.

THUS more weeks are wasted— time, labor and money are wasted. Meanwhile the Defense Commis- sion functions as best it can, but no one on it, and no observer of it, thinks that it is functioning as well as it should. No one believes that the present setup can con- tinue as it is—or should continue. Everybody knows the changes should be made, but nobody can do anything about it. The whole business has to wait on Mr. Roose- velt's will—and Mr. Roosevelt has gone on another inspection trip. When one considers the great need of England and what the final dis- aster to that embattled nation would mean to us, delays of this sort seem really terrible, and this is not being patiently borne by those whom it most affects here. The simple fact is that the entire national-defense program—construction of airplanes, guns, am- munition and battleships—is run- ning behind schedule. And the reason it is running behind is that it has been impossible to get the President to clothe the men he has asked to do the job with pow- er to do it. He has not cleared the decks for them and he has not made the decisions which only he can make.

IT was expected that he would act as soon as the election was over. On top of the month that has elapsed, two more weeks are now to be added before anything can be done to correct the defects in the defense machinery which have been manifest from the start. It does seem an unfortunate time for him to take a sea voyage. Exactly why he is doing so is something of a mystery. Every report is that his health is perfect, and to those who saw him before he left he exhibited no signs of fatigue or worry. One reason advanced is his desire to see for himself the new naval and air bases which we are building. One friendly commen- tator suggests that he has gone away to "think things through" and "clarify his mind," which might, of course, turn out to be a good thing. An unfriendly colum- nist asserts that he has gone away to avoid meeting Mr. Willkie, whom he dislikes, at the Gridiron dinner. Whatever the reason, it has put off the inescapable deci- sions about the defense setup for at least two weeks, which is dis- couraging.

Faith Clarke's SHOPPING TIPS FOR BUDGETEERS

The early-in-the-day shopper really enjoys herself. Why not take this tip and make Christmas buying a pleasure?

I can't keep away from Snellenburg's 4th fl. toy center chiefly because of the gorgeous collection of dolls! Prices for the darlings were never so reasonable. Be sure to see the "magic eye" doll, and the 1940 beauty with pliable skin you'll really love to touch. The soft, cuddly sweetie with eyes that move naturally comes in various sizes costing from $1.95 to $5.98. The new type velvety skinned dolls 20 in. in size (bathable) cost $5.95 to $11.95. The one manufacturer of both these is working night and day to keep up with orders.

Gay woolen gloves, the usually expensive kind with jolly designs em- broidered in several colors, hand made, at $1.69 and $1.79, in Snel- lenburg's 1st fl. glove dept. They're made in China, but remind one of Switzerland and sking parties. I don't know how long they'll last but personally I'll be after buying some early. For big little girls on up. Sizes small, me- dium, large. Indeed, the whole Snellenburg glove dept. is fairly blossoming with all sorts of gifty gloves at less. And I mean less.

Men and boys are keen about the new reversi- ble leather jackets. Wise women are buy- ing jackets now, to hide away for Christ- mas. The accommodat- ing Snellenburg buyer of the men's furnishings dept. (1st fl.) let me in on a marvelous $10 value jacket, priced specially at $7.95. Fashioned of real capeskin, the reverse side is sturdy tan cotton gabardine. Hand pockets are fleece lined, an- other safely zippered. Cossack lines, turn-up collar, rich nut brown color. Sizes 38 to 48.

The lovely new fruit bowls have covers and are truly beautiful. Of plain, clear crystal, they come in the form of great apples and pears, with stems for handles. Snellenburgs have them from $1.19 to $2.50, depending upon size. Much more expensive looking. The largest pear is about 14 in. high. They can be filled with real or wax fruit and used for dining room or living room decoration or usefulness. 3rd fl. glassware dept. Gifty, of course.

A highly artistic knit- ting bag, of real British India wool crewel em- broidered, on crash, sent to a friend, will give her a timely war knit- ting bent. It is incredi- ble that these genuine works of art can be had, made up into bags, for $1.25 to $1.50. They have been im- ported directly from India. Firms depending on importers must sell these same lovely things for more than twice this price. One will be my Christmas present to myself! Art needlework department (4th fl.). Separate lovely carved bag frames from British India cost $1.95 to $2.50. Sold! Yes?

Delightfully interesting and practical is the new "tea-master" tea pot with two spouts, one from which comes the brewed tea and the other from which comes plain hot water for the sissies who don't want their strong. These really fascinating pots are of pot- tery and come in many gay colors. At $1.95 they make just the inex- pensive present many of us are seeking. Snellenburg's 3rd fl. glass and pottery department. This de- partment has a reputation for gifty articles at prices at which you yourself will marvel. Wander through the aisles. You'll find your Christmas list gayly improved.

A game of games for ten whole family from ten years up. Snel- lenburg's 4th fl. game de- partment (noted for its collection) specializes in a "Highway Patrol" board game with tiny metal autos. For from 2 to 8 players. Real dan- ger and hazards and actual traffic rules are included. The game is en- thusiastically recommended and has been called a "national safety game" of real importance because it aids in safe driving. The game is sturdy and decorative. There's a super-size spinning dial. And only $1.49. Remember, a game-play- ing family is a closer one.

Here's a 10 cent gift and a $9.95 to $19.95 one. Both ace! Snel- lenburg's Smoke Shop Corner, 1st floor, has them. A "valet" box which both holds and electrically lights cigarettes is a new wonder. Beautifully made, decorative, $9.95 up. For man or woman. Also 1 in. cigarette hold- ers, "tulip" in color, for women, 10 cts. Grand in place of Christmas cards! Look over the entire nice display of gifts for men held at this thoroughly masculine counter. The friendly salesmen delight in showing you "the works."

Don't forget Snellenburgs have a free phone order number up to 15ct. calls! Furthermore, do tell the shop folks you found "it" in our column. Thanks, F. C.

DOUBLE DUTY DOLLARS

EVERY DOLLAR SPENT AT HOME PAYS DOUBLE DIVIDENDS

Every dollar spent at home helps to make our future secure. It not only buys for us merchandise comparable in quality and price to any other trading section, but it helps maintain our schools, our churches, and the costs of local government.

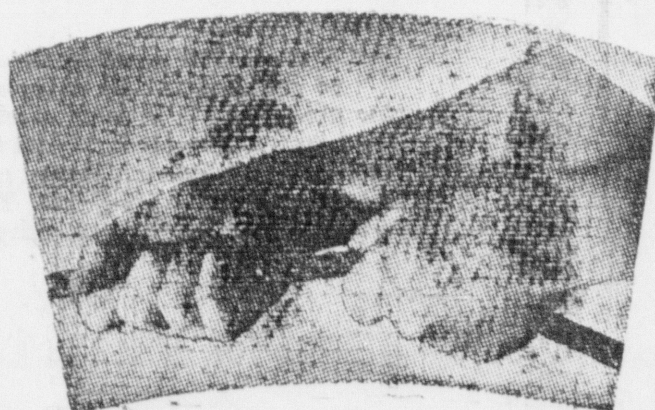

How does it accomplish this double purpose? Simply because of the fact that local merchants help support the schools, costs of local government and churches. A portion of every dollar spent with a local merchant is turned back to the Borough in the form of taxes. And local merchants help support the institutions of Bristol. Why let your dollars roam to other towns?

The challenge is up to you. You alone can help to make the future of Bristol secure. You alone can help to build Bristol. You alone can "build Bristol by buying in Bristol."

Buying at home increases local payrolls. We urge you to try Bristol first. Whether it be groceries, household items, clothing, or any other article, try Bristol first.

Today's Quiet Moment

(By Howard L. Zepp, Th. M.)

A grudge is a most expensive thing, for not only must it be continually nursed, but it crowds out peace and love and joy and Thee. O God of love and life, may we keep humbly near Thee, for with Thee there is no room for hatred. With Thee we may have strength to return good for evil and live in love and peace. We would remember that the cold, cruel steel of hatred can be melted only by the warmth of Christian love. Amen.

EXCESS WATER

GREELEY, Colo. — (INS) — While most irrigation farmers are complaining of a shortage of water, Albert Hengelfe, Weld County farmer, is objecting to getting too much. Hengelfe has filed a $3,620 damage suit against a neighbor, Fred Ehrman, charging that an excess flow of water from the Ehrman farm has inundated 35 acres of corn and ruined 10 acres of good farm land.

ON THE SCREENS

BRISTOL THEATRE

"Angels Over Broadway," hailed as one of the most tenderly human romances of the year, opens today at the Bristol Theatre. Written, directed and produced by Ben Hecht, with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., acting as co-producer, the new drama tells the story of four people in search of a "break"—a grifter, a cafe entertainer, a thief and a drunken playwright. Fairbanks is starred; featured members of the cast include Rita Hayworth, Thomas Mitchell and John Qualen.

Roy Rogers, currently appearing in Republic's "Young Bill Hickok" at the Bristol Theatre, is really a "real American." The blood of American Indian ancestors flows through his veins!

GRAND THEATRE

When the screen masterpieces of this decade are reckoned, "A Dispatch From Reuters" will be among them for the Grand Theatre's newest entry is a beautifully done screen document from every standpoint—direction, performance and all-around production quality—an important impressive screen event.

Dedicated to the Fourth Estate, "A Dispatch From Reuters" dramatizes the life story of the founder of the first world-wide news service. From boyhood, Julius Reuter was obsessed by the desire "to make the world a little smaller" through a more rapid circulation of vital news. Dauntless courage and unconquerable optimism speeded him to this goal. As Reuter, Edward G. Robinson presents a brilliant ly etched portrait in an outstanding performance rivaling that which he gave as "Dr. Ehrlich." He is supported by a uniformly excellent cast.

RITZ THEATRE

The last person in the world you could get to admit that Preston Sturges is a genius is—Preston Sturges. And this is in no sense a matter of false or affected modesty. He stoutly maintains that such success as has come to him has been in about equal parts, good luck and "an act of Providence."

But this denial of Sturges hardly

DIAMOND SPORTING CLUB DECIDES SEASON CLOSED

ANDALUSIA, Dec. 6.—Coach Joseph Diamanti and Manager Calvin Frens have declared the season of the Diamond Sporting Club football closed. After repeated challenges to Doylestown, Sellersville, and the Blue Bells brought no results, the official announcement was made.

Thus, one of the best seasons known in the history of football at the Andalusia village has been brought to a close. The club won nine and lost but one game.

Other teams in Andalusia have sported better records but none carried the schedule that this season's club had. The Diamond boys played all the top-notch teams of this section and the nearby Philadelphia. Included in the victory column were games with Langhorne, Bristol, and Falls Alumni, the latter being beaten twice.

The season's record is as follows:

Diamond	0	Norristown	6
22	North Phils	0
18	Holmesburg	0
25	Bristol	0
25	Phila. Vags	0
6	Falls Alumni	0
6	Langhorne	0
6	Norristown	0
37	Wynmoor Aces	0
170

According to the arrangements now being made by the management, Diamond will enter the Northeast Conference next season. Clubs already in this conference are: Pilsudski, Paradise, Dittman, Diaston Scholastics, Cheltenham, Glenside, and Willow Grove. Diamond will make the eighth club of the circuit.

Coach Diamanti will still play the other teams of this section in order to retain his Lower Bucks County independent championship.

BOWLING RESULTS

El Bart continued to hold the lead in the Federal Bowling League. However No. 1 Fire Co. surprised everyone by taking 3 points from the leading El Bart team. Felix lead the El Bart team with 512 while Amisson topped the maples with a 585 for the firemen.

Voltz Texaco, making a bid for top berth took four points from the Grundy men "Tiger" Mazille rolling 516 for the Texaco team and Manzo with a 473 for the Grundy team.

K. of C. falling into a slump lost all 4 points to the Crescents. Chroo rolled 517 for Crescents and Pegley 452 for the K. of C.

Y. M. A. won 4 points from Leedom's. Gilardi rolled 492 for the Y. M. A. and Snyder with 430 for Leedom's.

In a special match game last night the Bristol Recreation girls' team beat Roth's Midgets of Trenton 3 points in a very exciting match.

London, Dec. 6.—Heavy new blows against Germany's war machine by British bombers were announced by the Air Ministry today as reports to London indicated a Nazi night raid on a south coast seaport—identified by Berlin as Portsmouth—had been repelled.

Terrific anti-aircraft fire hampered and finally drove off the German raiders attacking the south coast port, according to the capital said.

The Air Ministry announcement said that British bombers yesterday raided an electro chemical factory at Eindhoven, the Rotterdam airport, an air-drome at Haamstede and the German submarine base at Lorient on the French coast.

Unfavorable weather prevented bomber operations during the night, the ministry stated, adding that two RAF planes sent out on routine patrols were missing.

Dover Is Not In Ruins

Dover, England, Dec. 6.—Throughout the world, even in England itself, there are millions today who believe that Dover is running close competition with the ruins of Pompeii.

The rumor, planted by wishful broadcasting on the part of Germans and Italians, has grown into something big by the innocent though highly dangerous gossip of the English themselves.

But make no mistake, Britain's front line town is not in ruins. It is carried but not scored. Shocked by shells but not shell-shocked.

Life goes on much the same as in the good old days.

A stranger driving into Dover would have to look hard for the damage caused by German bombs and shells.

Dover has to face shelling as well as air raids. Eleven inch shells whiz across the straits as frequently as the cross channel steamers of old.

But Dover is still standing. The answer is that at least 50% of the German shells have fallen short into the sea and the majority of the others have caused huge craters in fields behind the town. Casualties have been remarkably few.

Greek Troops Surge Into Albanian Cities

Athens, Dec. 6.—Victorious Greek troops surged into the Albanian cities of Santi Quaranta, Porto Edda, and Argyrocastro today as Premier Mussolini's vanquished legions fled in panic and disorder to the north.

Full Greek occupation of the two key-points from which Italy had planned to invade and subjugate Greece was signaled when the blue and white striped flag of the Hellenic kingdom was ceremoniously flown from town halls of both cities.

A brief official announcement told of the latest and most significant Greek victories since white-kilted mountain warriors took Koritza and broke the back of the Italian invasion at its outset.

According to all indications in Athens, the Italians appeared to be quitting all of Southern Albania as speedily as possible.

Fires were observed at both Santi Quaranta and Argyrocastro and it was believed the Italians were destroying war materials rather than let them fall into the hands of the advancing Greeks.

On the northern front, advices to Athens stated, the Greeks in another bayonet charge drove the Fascists from Kami and Mokra on the snow-covered battle line. Extremely heavy fighting was reported progressing on the north-western flank in the Mokra Mountains.

British planes were said to have bombed and crippled an Italian destroyer off Santi Quaranta as it attempted to cover the Fascist withdrawal.
